Congressional Proceedings.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—In the Senate to-day Blair presented a memorial from the Women's National Industrial League for the suppression and punishment of "armed assassins known as Pinkerton's detectives." Referred to the Judiciary Committee.

Edmunds offered a concurrent resolution, which went over, that when Congress adjourns on the 19th of September, it will be to meet on the 10th of November.

The tariff bill was then taken up, the pending question being on the Finance Committee's amendment to paragraph 307, which taxes salt in bags and packages 12 cents per 100 pounds; and in bulk 8 cents, the amendment being to strike out the provision allowing drawbacks on salt used in exported meats.

McPherson moved to strike out the entire paragraph, the effect of which would be to place salt on the free list. Colquitt advocated McPherson's amendment, and read an extract from a speech made by Benton in the Senate half a century ago against the salt tax.

Hoar asked whether Benton had not made that speech about the same time he made another speech declaring Oregon and the whole of the Pacific coast territory as utterly worthless for agricultural purposes.

Reagan remarked that Webster said substantially the same thing.

McPherson's amendment was rejected—yeas 15, nays 29, a strict party vote.

Vest made the point that to strike out the provision for drawbacks as proposed would discriminate against meats, as the salt used in preserving them could not be identified for reimportation under the general provisions of the Act; that there was a special provision in the case of salt used in preserving fish.

Vest argued in favor of free salt, the natural production of which was found in inexhaustible quantities in every country in the world and in almost every State in the Union. He had seen a deposit of rock salt in Louisiana which would supply this world and five worlds like it for an illimitable time. Why, then, should English salt be taxed, when the dairymen and pork packers and beef packers would use it, no matter what duty was on it.

Cullom argued against striking out the provision paragraph. He had written to a pork packer in his State, inquiring whether the general provision (section 24) would allow a drawback in that business, and the reply was it would not. The export trade, he said, demanded foreign salt. He had always been in favor of protection, even in the matter of salt, but this was not a question of protection to the American export meat business.

After further discussion on the salt paragraph a vote was taken on the committee's amendment to strike out this provision. The proviso was not struck out—yeas 15, nays 31.

The Republican Senators who voted against the Finance Committee's amendment were Allison, Cullom, Edmunds, Hawley, Ingalls, Jones of Nevada, Mitchell, Platt, Plumb, Sherman, Teller, Washburn and Wilson of Iowa.

The conference report on the joint resolution for the relief of destitution in Oklahoma was presented and agreed to. It directs the application of the unexpended balance for the relief of persons in the region overflowed by the Mississippi to the relieving of citizens of Oklahoma rendered destitute by the unexpended drought there.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—The Acting Secretary of War has directed the abandonment of the military reservation at Hot Springs, Ark., as a military reservation, and its transfer to the Interior Department for disposition under the law.

A Double Tragedy.

By Associated Press.]
SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 28.—Late this afternoon John M. Chenoweth, proprietor of the Peerless Saloon of this city, shot and killed Richard T. Carroll, a well-known wholesale liquor dealer, and then committed suicide. Carroll had long been prominent in business, politics and athletics. He was one of the original members of the Olympic Club. He leaves a wife and several children.

It appears that Chenoweth owed Carroll a large sum of money, and was summoned to Carroll's office to make arrangements for its payment. Chenoweth disputed the amount claimed, and while Carroll was going over the ledger with his bookkeeper Chenoweth stepped up behind and, putting a 45-gauge pistol to the back of Carroll's head, blew his brains out. Chenoweth then stepped into a back room and shot himself through the head, dying instantly.

The Chicago Strikes Off.

By Associated Press.]
CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—At noon to-day the collapse of every strike in this city had occurred, and work in the stock yards was begun in earnest at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

As the result of a conference the Alton switchmen have recognized their mistake and returned to work. The men agree to hereafter refrain from trying to dictate to the company in the matter of hiring or promoting its men, but reserve the right to appeal to the officers of the company for a redress of grievances.

The switchmen at the stock yards held a meeting this morning and declared the strike off, to go into effect at 1 o'clock to-day.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

The Why Club.

When the Why Club was started it was predicted by a few of the obstructionists who consider it their bounden duty to oppose and oppress every undertaking not originated by themselves that it was to be a failure. Yet to-day it lives, and will continue to live, doing good to its fortunate members, and in its way rendering aid to the well-being of society. It is not awfully or otherwise particularly interested in political questions, yet no doubt at this time such measures will be adopted by the organization as will at least promote qualified men to office, and endeavor to suppress the influence of corruptive measures. May it continue.

MONSTER-PIECE OF GRANITE, Recently Taken From a State of Maine Quarry.

Vinalhaven, Maine, claims to have produced the largest stone ever brought to light. The Bodwell Granite Company recently quarried a shaft of granite which is the largest piece of stone ever quarried anywhere, and, if erected, will be the highest, largest and heaviest piece of solid stone standing, or that ever stood, so far as any record can be found. In height it considerably exceeds any of the Egyptian obelisks. The tallest of these, which was brought from Heliopolis to Alexandria by Emperor Constantine, and afterwards taken to Rome, where it is still standing, is 105 feet 7 inches high, while the Vinalhaven shaft is 115 feet long, 10 feet square at the base, and weighs 850 tons. It is understood, says Stone, that the company quarried this immense monolith of their own account, not having an order for anything of the kind, and they suggest that it would be a fitting contribution from Maine for the monument to be erected in honor of General Grant.

PEACE IN CENTRAL AMERICA.

Three People Perish in the Flames.

A Desperate Encounter.
FORT DODGE, Iowa, Aug. 28.—Frank Roberts of Rancroft, a small town north of here, tells a strange story of a desperate encounter with a mysterious wild animal on the banks of the Des Moines river. On Saturday while Roberts was hunting for his calves, he was attacked by a ferocious animal. According to his account the animal bore a resemblance of a panther. It sprang upon him from a bunch of weeds on the edge of an adjoining slough, clearing ten feet at the first bound, knocking him down and covering his whole face with its enormous mouth, displaying at the same time a huge set of blunt, yellow teeth. He says the animal was about six feet long, heavy in front, but slim through the flank. It was of a yellow-gray color, with black streaks over the eyes. The neck was thick, and the head nearly as large as a cow's. He said the combat lasted nearly an hour, during which time he walked backward in front of the ferocious beast for over eighty yards. He was knocked down several times by the beast, but succeeded in freeing himself from its grasp every time. Roberts called loudly for help, and was heard for over half a mile. Help came none too soon, for he was nearly exhausted. The animal escaped into the woods.

Powderly Talks Again.

By Associated Press.]
NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Powderly makes the following statement, commenting on Chief Arthur's letter: "The main question has not been touched upon by Arthur in anything I have seen yet. A simple expression from his lips in opposition to the taking of the places of the firemen by the engineers who are Brotherhood men, would settle the matter, and that he has not done yet. Those who took the places of the engineers on the 'Q' road had already abandoned the Knights before they did that act of treachery. When they went West from Reading, I warned the order and organized labor against them and did it publicly. When Sargeant, for whom I have the greatest respect, wired me, asking if these men represented me in any way, my answer was: 'They violate their obligation as Knights in doing as is represented; pay no attention to them. They represent no one but themselves, and their actions will not be sustained by the order of the Knights of Labor. Such men should be ostracized by all honest men.'"

Peace Established.

By Associated Press.]
WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Acting Secretary Wharton to-day received a telegram from Minister Mizner of Guatemala, dated the 28th inst., as follows: "I went again to Acajutla, in Salvador, on Monday, with three of the diplomatic corps, and met the provisional President and several hundred of the leading men of the Republic. The basis of peace was explained and slightly modified, and was accepted and signed by General Ezeta, after which we returned here, and Guatemala also accepted and signed it. Both parties have been officially notified to retire their armies within forty-eight hours, and to reduce them to a peace footing in eight days. This establishes peace in Central America."

A WOMAN GARROTED.

The Same Manner of Execution as the Chinese Practice.

A Madrid dispatch to a London paper says: Thirty thousand inhabitants of Madrid, mostly women, assembled outside the great prison-walls opposite the scaffold upon which a woman was to be executed. According to the Spanish custom, this was done by strangulation. The criminal sits on a wooden bench before a post, against which the neck is pressed and broken by an iron collar. This execution is called "la horca" and is in all classes of society, and particularly among the lower orders. Many were dissatisfied with the sentence, because it was believed that this servant-girl was not alone in the murder of her aged mistress. She confessed her share of the crime, but accused another woman, who was sentenced to penal servitude, with being the principal actor in the tragedy. The Madrid papers on this occasion give vivid descriptions of the horrors of the present system, by which a convict is shut up for thirty hours with frazzled and greasy hair, and is kept in the presence of his or her approaching fate. In this case the woman had to be carried to the scaffold half-insensible.

A SNAKE COUNTRY.

Where Bad Whisky and Malaria Prevalent.

A well known rancher living near Pleasant Grove, formerly known by the significant name of "Gouge-Eye," in Sutter county, Cal., informs the Sacramento Record Union an amphibious serpent, over forty feet long and fully seven feet in diameter, is prowling around the sloughs and tule lands of that vicinity, and has been seen by several of his neighbors. No one familiar with "Gouge-Eye" will doubt that they have seen the monster and many others of the same kind, unless here has been a change of neighbors. Years ago "Gouge-Eye" was, and probably still is, an ideal Democratic precinct. There was only one Republican—the Postmaster—in the place, he surrounded sloughs and tule beds malaria, and it took a great deal of whisky and quinine to keep the "Gouge-Eyes" in condition. It is a good country for snakes.

F. LEVY & BRO,

The Duty of a Newspaper.

It is the duty of a newspaper to discuss political questions, the fitness of candidates for office and endeavor to keep its readers enlightened on all matters affecting the public weal, and a paper that has the independence and courage to fearlessly discuss such questions should be hailed as a good omen in Nevada. It is the GAZETTE'S purpose to publish a paper in the interest of the whole people, and not in the interest of any clique, corporation or individual. We shall at all times reserve the right to criticize the acts of public men and call attention to their faults, if by doing so we are serving the masses. We do not propose to be shut off or gagged as long as we confine ourselves to the truth and to an open and fair discussion of public affairs.

This State has been ruled too long by a few selfish men who would have every individual working to further enrich them, and have a subservient press say nothing about it. We are working hard and faithfully in an honest endeavor to build up a commonwealth that will command the respect of other States, and as far as possible remove the stigma of "rotten borough" from our fair State. All we ask in return is the support and confidence of the public, and, if necessary, we promise to fight our battles with the bosses single-handed and alone.

The Record.

To correct an erroneous impression that has been put in circulation by the Reno Journal and Carson Appeal regarding Senator Foley's vote on the bill moving the State University to Reno, the following bit of Legislative history is referred to. On pages 317-18 of the Senate Journal for the twelfth session, under the head of "General File and Third Reading of Bills," appears the following:

"Assembly Bill No. 114—An Act to amend an Act entitled 'An Act to locate the State University and provide for the control and maintenance of the same,' approved March 7, 1878.

"Amendment of the Committee of the Whole read and adopted.

"A debate ensued, when Mr. Williams moved that the Senate resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole for the consideration of Assembly Bill No. 114.

"Lost.

"Read third time.

"A debate was opened, when Westernfield moved the previous question be put.

"Carried.

"Roll call, and bill passed by the following vote:

"Yeas—Messrs. Boyle, Briggs, Dennis, Fish, Kaiser, Lyman, Marker, Maute, Pierce, Powell, Smythe and Westernfield—12.

"Nays—Messrs. Dangberg, Foley, Gallagher, Parker, Ponzade and Williams—6."

The arrest by the United States authorities of the Aldermen of Biddeford, Me., for neglecting to strike from the voting list the names of persons not legally entitled to vote, and for conspiracy to put non-voters on the lists, is the culmination of the troubles which arose there at the city election last spring. There is a large French-Canadian population in Biddeford, which is a factory town, and at the last election the Democratic officials attempted wholesale frauds in naturalizing and voting those aliens. The United States Marshals tried to put a stop to the business, and were themselves arrested by local officers. Apparently the Biddeford Democrats are determined to perpetuate their fraud, and the Bulletin seems to think that in this they bear a striking resemblance to their brethren in San Francisco.

The House Committee on Railroads has reported a bill to compel companies engaged in interstate traffic to equip trains with automatic couplers, which is good, and with automatic brakes, which is also all right if accompanied by a clause requiring the service of trainmen enough to manage the hand-brakes in case of need. The latter is the most necessary proviso. The companies will use the automatic brake for economy's sake, and some of them may dispense with brakemen for the same reason, unless required to keep a sufficient number.

IN A ROMAN CONVENT.

The Life of Monks and Lay-Brothers Described by Dr. Parkman.

The lay-brother appeared at day-break, and told me that in fifteen minutes I was to join the Italians in retreat, and go with them to mass, writes Dr. Francis Parkman, in Harper's Magazine. The mass was followed by another sermon, after which we were all summoned to coffee in the room where we had taken tea the evening before. The report of my having had got abroad, and I found myself an object of curious attention.

After coffee we were dismissed to our chambers for an hour, and then listened to another sermon in the chapel. This consumed the morning till eleven o'clock, when a bell rang for dinner, and monks and laymen together moved in solemn procession to the refectory. The monks went first, the Superior at their head, then followed the laymen, and while the procession was forming in the corridor they all kept up the dismal, unintermitted chanting. The refectory was a long, high, dimly-lighted hall. A table of bare wood was stretched across the farther end for the dignitaries of the convent, and was continued down both sides. Here, on right and left, sat the rest of the monks, forty or fifty in number, and the laymen sat below them, nearer the door. The seats were wooden benches, placed on the inner side of the tables only. On the wall over the heads of the dignitaries was a fresco of the Last Supper, as usual in refectories, while on the side walls hung grim pictures of saints with upturned eyes and palms pressed together. High up, near the ceiling, was a small pulpit. The entire hall was whitewashed above and paneled with oak below.

At the head of the tables stood the Superior, who was General of the whole order, a tall, portly man with a stern and austere countenance. The monks, motionless and in dead silence, stood ranged on right and left, robed in black from head to foot, and wearing on the breast the badge of their order—a heart surrounded by a cross. Their bare, cadaverous faces bespoke the rigor of their discipline, which is extremely severe. When all were in their places the Superior raised his finger, and the whole assemblage broke out into another chant. When at last it was ended the finger was raised again, and all took their seats. Not a word was spoken; but a monk entered the pulpit from a narrow door in the wall, and in drawing, monotonous tones read a Latin sermon, which lasted throughout the meal.

He had hardly begun when a file of lay-brothers entered, each carrying a receptacle formed of three trays, one above the other, connected by an upright wooden rod, and holding a great number of bowls and small dishes. The monks were served first. Before them were set bowls of a dismal-looking vegetable soup, along with dishes of dried pease boiled whole, and swelled to a wonderful size by the process. Each then drew a cup, a fork and a wooden spoon from a drawer in the table, and with a rueful countenance proceeded to eat, first filling the cup from an earthen bowl.

We of the laity fared better, being served with rice, eggs, fish and dried fruit. The Italian seemed little edified by the Latin sermon, which few of them could have understood. The meal was followed by a prayer, with low responses from the monks, after which they all filed off to the dim galleries to their dens, looking like living originals of the dreary portraits ranged along the walls.

When I had got to my chamber and was refreshing myself with the Pioneers, one of them came in to convert me. "My father," said I, "I am afraid your kindness will be thrown away."

But he clapped me on the knee, and exclaimed cheerfully: "Ah, figlio, you will be a good Catholic soon. No doubt of it."

There was an amusing vivacity in him, quite different from his extreme solemnity when at dinner. In the course of his talk, which was rambling, though pious, he kept offering me his snuff-box, freely using it himself meanwhile; and when he thought he had made a good hit in his argument, he would wink at me with a comical look of triumph, on which we both fell to laughing. At length the bell rang for more prayers and sermons in the chapel, and this sprightly old apostle went back to his cell.

After the sermon the laymen were turned out to walk for a while in the convent garden, attended by Padre Luca. He was not, I think, one of the Passionist brotherhood, but a secular priest, and his pleasant, plump, good-humored countenance contrasted strangely with the dry, leathery visages of the monks. As we walked up and down the paths, shaded with olives and oleanders, he took me by the arm and talked of matters of faith, stopping from time to time at the little groups of Italians, who, after reverently kissing his hand, began to chat and laugh with him in an easy familiarity, gracefully tempered with respect. He seemed to have their full affection and confidence, at which, judging by what I saw of him, I did not wonder.

A curious anesthetic used by the Chinese has recently been made known by Dr. U. Lambuth in his third annual report of the Szechow Hospital. It is obtained by placing a frog in a jar of flour and irritating it by prodding it. Under these circumstances it exudes a liquid which forms a paste with the flour. This paste dissolved in water has well-marked anesthetic properties. After the finger has been immersed in the liquid for a few minutes it can be cut to the bone without pain being felt.

The highest bridge on earth was opened in March at Edinburgh, Scotland. Its length is 2,306 feet. It stands fifth in the list of highest structures in the world: Eiffel Tower, Washington Monument, Cologne Cathedral and Old St. Paul's, London. Engineering experts declare it a marvel of skill, the public a marvel of convenience. It is also most unsightly and puts a blot on one of the loveliest views in the world. Lovers of natural beauty are saying to the cheering public with Ruskin: "You make railroads of the skies and the cathedrals of the earth, and eat off their altars."

Malaria

Is believed to be caused by poisonous miasms arising from low, marshy land or from decaying vegetable matter, and which, breathed into the lungs, enter and poison the blood. If a healthy condition of the blood is maintained by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, one is much less liable to malaria, and Hood's Sarsaparilla has cured many severe cases of this distressing affection.

A Wonderful Medicine.

"For malaria I think Hood's Sarsaparilla has no equal. It has kept my children well right through the summer, and we live in one of the worst places for malaria in Maryland. I take Hood's Sarsaparilla for that all gone feeling, with great benefit." Mrs. R. F. Davis, Maryland, Cal.

Break-Bone Fever.

"My daughter Pearl was taken with dengue (or break-bone) fever 2 years ago, and my friends thought I would lose her. I had almost given up hope until she began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. She took four bottles in four months, and gained 15 pounds. I thank Hood's Sarsaparilla for giving her back to me restored to health and strength." JULIA A. KING, Sherman, Texas.

REPUBLICAN

STATE CONVENTION!

OFFICE OF
REPUBLICAN STATE CENTRAL COMMITTEE,
VIRGINIA CITY, NEV., MAY 20, 1890.

At a meeting of the Republican State Central Committee of Nevada, held this day, it was ordered that a

REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION

Be held at

VIRGINIA CITY,

Thursday, Sept. 4, 1890.

At 2 o'clock, p. m., for the purpose of nominating a full State ticket, viz:

Member of Congress.
Governor.
Lieutenant Governor.
Judge of the Supreme Court.
Clerk of the Supreme Court.
Attorney General.
Secretary of State.
State Controller.
Surveyor General.
State Printer.
Superintendent of Public Instruction.
Four Judges of the District Court.

Two Members of Board of Regents State University.

Also for the appointment of a State Central Committee.

The basis of representation of the representative counties in the said convention shall be one delegate for each 100 votes, and one for each fraction of 100 votes or over cast for the Harrison and Morton Electors, aggregating 146 delegates, apportioned as follows:

Churchill county	2
Douglas	5
Elko	5
Esmeralda	14
Eureka	14
Humboldt	7
Lander	7
Lincoln	8
Lyons	8
Nye	4
Ormsby	11
Pershing	11
Washoe	18
White Pine	18
Total	146

The several Republican County Central Committees will call a

PRIMARY ELECTION

Of the People on Saturday, Aug. 16, 1890.

For the purpose of electing delegates to the said State Convention, the Primary Elections to be held on Saturday, August 16, 1890, shall be held in compliance with the laws of the State and the instructions of the committee.

The following test will be required of each and every voter at the said Primary elections:

"I am a citizen of this State and will support the nominees of the Republican party."

The following Resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That this committee re-affirm the State and National Republican platform for 1888, including the declaration that "the Republican party is in favor of the use of both gold and silver as money" and that it "condemns all efforts to demonize silver."

Resolved, That the persistent neglect of a currency window to increase the quantity of silver to the maximum of four million dollars per month, coupled with his attempt to influence Congressional legislation so as to perpetuate silver demonization, is a shameful violation of the silver plank of the National Republican platform, an attack on the rights and interests of the miners, farmers and workers of the land, and an act of party perfidy that should call for his retirement from the councils of an administration which is pledged to help and not hinder the de-monization of silver.

Resolved, That the Republican party is in favor of free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver; that it holds to this principle as a test of party faith and a test of party allegiance; that it will permit of no abandonment or modification of this doctrine; that let whoever will prove recalcitrant to the principle of bimetalism it will remain steadfast there, and that it will have all voters in Nevada who favor the repeal of the Iniquitous international law of 1873 by which silver was demonized, and who desire the establishment of free and unlimited coinage as the law of the United States of America, to join in electing delegates to a Republican State Convention.

HOOSIER SHREWNESS.

As Crossing the River of Indiana is the

One day, as I was riding through the lower end of Tipton County, Indiana, I came upon a native, who was engaged in "picking trails" and burning logs in a little clearing by the roadside, writes Ed. R. Pritchard in the Arkansas Traveler. Not knowing exactly the best way to go to reach the neighborhood I desired to visit, I asked him how to get to the fence and asked the Hoosier to direct me the way to Bennett's mills.

"Well," he replied, pausing in his work and resting himself on a stump that stood conveniently near, "I low it's a matter of five miles, though it must be a little grain less. You jess keep this road for 'bout a mile further on; then you turn to your right an' go north 'till you come to the second cross roads; then turn west and keep straight ahead 'till you git to the mills."

I thanked him and was about starting off when he hailed me and said:

"I reckon it might be none of my business, stranger, but I'd like to ask you a question or two, ef you've no objections."

"All right, fer away," said I.

"Well, then, I'd jess like to know what you're goin' down to Bennett's fer?"

"Well," said I, "there is a man down there that owes me some money, and as I'm hard up myself I thought I'd see if I could collect it."

"I thought so," he answered; "and now I'll bet a dollar I kin guess the fellow's name the first pop; an' I'll bet another dollar on top o' that one that you don't git a cent."

"Well," I said, "I jess tell you fer fun. The fellow is Jake Rodkey an' he hain't worth shucks. You're jess wastin' your time a-ridin' round the country tryin' to git money out of him."

The fellow had named the very man I was going to see and about whose financial soundness I myself had serious doubts, but having got this much information from an entirely unexpected source, I was naturally anxious to get more.

"Well, my friend," I said, "you're guessin' the man; but what makes you think that he won't pay me what he owes?"

"The claim is just, and besides, has been standin' a long time."

"It's fer a mowin' machine you sold him more'n two years ago, hain't it?"

"Yes," I answered, now more puzzled than ever that a man whom I had never met before should know more about my affairs than I did myself. "Yes," I continued, "and there's a balance of nearly fifty dollars still due."

"Mout as well be fifty thousand," answered the native; "Jake could pay it jess as easy."

Concluding that the fellow was chaffing me and thinking to let him know that fact I said:

"Oh, I think Jake will pay me, at any rate I'll juss ride on over and see him."

"Wall," he answered, with a grin, "if you're bound to see him you'd better take some men with spades an' a screw driver, 're else you'll find him perty hard to git at."

"What do you mean?"

"Why, nothin'; just that Jake Rodkey's dead; a mackerel. We buried him last week over in the Bald Hill buryin' groun', 'bout er mile north of the mill."

"Is it possible?" I exclaimed.

"Course it is. I was at the funeral, an' I reckon I know a dead man when I see him."

"I've no doubt of it," I answered; and bidding him good-day I pursued my journey. Sure enough, I found on reaching Bennett's mills that my man was dead, and also that I stood no earthly show of collecting my bill. I never did learn, though, how the native knew who I was and the nature of my business, but have always suspected he simply did a good job of guessing.

Imitation on Mushrooms.

Commercial enterprise carried to extremes is apt to develop into license. A genius living in the department of Ayer's French, struck by the high prices at which mushrooms were sold in his district, had a bright idea. He fabricated the expensive delicacy out of turnips, cutting the innocent turnip into mushroom shapes, drying the latter, artistically completing their appearance with a few blotches of paint, and then palmed them off upon his unsuspecting customers as the genuine article. For some time the manufactured mushrooms were sold to advantage; but one day a connoisseur discovered the trick and brought an action, and the ingenious manufacturer got two months' imprisonment, in spite of his efforts to demonstrate that the turnips were quite as wholesome as the richer vegetable they personated, and he now is laboriously meditating on the rashness of genius in substituting dried turnips for delicate mushrooms.

Reputed Summer Beach.

There is proof that a really great man rises superior to the limitations of circumstances in the incident recently related of the New Hampshire landlady who made a requisition on the city for six young men to proceed at once to the mountains, and there, arrayed in tennis costume during the day and conventional evening dress at night, assist in entertaining the guests of his hostelry, presumably the maiden element for the most part, living on the fat of the land, meanwhile, gratis. The increasing scarcity of young men at our summer hotels has proved more deleterious to profit than even a combination of cold weather and high prices, and it was inevitable that something radical should be undertaken. The New Hampshire man mentioned is evidently abreast of the times.

The Great Napoleon's Heart.

May 6, 1891, Dr. Anatomist, assisted by Thomas Carswell, proceeded to make an autopsy on the body of Napoleon I. at Longwood. The post-mortem was interrupted by the darkness of the evening. When going to continue the autopsy next morning the physicians found that the Emperor's heart had been almost entirely devoured by rats. A fresh lamb's heart was taken and placed in the dead man's thorax. Thus the body of Napoleon, which has been exposed under the dome of the Invalides since 1840, contains the heart of an animal instead of that of the hero of Austerlitz.

JEWELS AND LACES.

"Oh, girl with the jeweled fingers, Oh, girl with the laces rare!"

What are your jewels and what are your laces worth to you, if from undergoing the trying ordeals which fashionable society impose on its devotees, enough to test the physical strength and endurance of the most robust, you break down, lose your health and become a physical wreck, as thousands do from such causes?

Under such circumstances you would willingly give all your jewels and all your laces to regain lost health. This you can do if you will resort to the use of that great restorative known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Thousands of grateful women bless the day it was made known to them.

For all derangements, irregularities and weaknesses peculiar to women, it is the only remedy, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturer. It will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrappers, and faithfully carried out for many years.

An invigorating tonic, it imparts strength to the whole system, and is especially generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon.

DR. PIERCE'S PELLETS regulate and cleanse the liver, stomach and bowels. One a dose. Sold by druggists. 25 cents a vial.
